

Something To Do Book Review:

Mouse Turning Chocolate Balls

Ingredients:

- 4 cups of rolled oats
- 1 1/4 cups of sugar

- 1/2 cup of unsweetened cocoa powder
- 2 sticks of butter or 1 cup, softened
- 2 tablespoons of coffee
- 1 tsp of vanilla
- 2 one ounce squares of baking chocolate, melted
- 1 cup of coconut flakes

1. Mix the oats, sugar, and cocoa together in a bowl.

2. Add the butter, mixing it into a wet dough.
3. Pour in the coffee, vanilla, and melted chocolate.

4. Mix together well.

5. Put your coconut flakes on a plate or in a bowl.
6. Take a small amount of the chocolate dough and roll it in your hands to form a ball. It should be a bit smaller than a ping-pong ball.
7. Take the ball and roll it in the coconut flakes.

You can eat the balls immediately or place them in the refridgerator of two hours to firm them up a bit.

Here's the catch.....these balls are irresistable.

You can't eat just one.

Some of them will go down easy,

and others have the potential to turn you into a mouse.

All I can say is watch out for the cat.

If by chance someone you love should be turned into a mouse here's the best advice I can give.....or Roald Dahl can give,"It doesn't matter who you are or what you look like so long as somebody loves you."
